ABSTRACT

The present invention includes a sedation and analgesia system having a high sensitivity and specificity for diagnostic and therapeutic algorithms, where the high sensitivity and specificity may be gained by providing multiple monitors for a single patient parameter. The invention also comprises multiple monitors for a single patient parameter, where the monitored data from each monitor is compared with that of the others by a controller in order to ascertain whether monitored data is reliable.